However, the Solicitor General of the United States, Robert Bork, must first approve the Army's wish to take the case to the Third Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans. His order also said that Calley had been referred to as "a mass murderer" and a "ghoul."

Eyewitness Accounts

Judge Elliott was particularly critical of the reporting of accounts by eyewitnesses at My Lei and of what he considered prejudicial news treatment. He mentioned, for example, a tele-vision network's use of bloody blotches on a map of Vietnam to identify the site of the killings, and called this a "bloodhorror visual technique."

The judge also criticized the selling of photographs of the massacre victims to news media. notably Life magazine, by a former military photographer. The pictures were later used in Calley's trial.

"The United States regards the problem of oil prices as one that caused by rising oil prices to be is detrimental to the world's economy," Mr. Schlesinger told a Pentagon news conference. But, he added, 'It expects to have a solution to the problem through negotiations and amicable discussions. It is not antici-pated that there is going to be military conflict." Warning to Producers

Mr. Schlesinger spoke two days after President Ford and Secretary of State Henry Kissinger launched a warning to oilproducing countries that failure to reduce artificially high oil prices could bring on a global economic calamity.

Mr. Ford noted in his speech Monday that throughout history countries have gone to war over natural resources. While the President carefully ruled out war as an acceptable solution, the fact that he mentioned it caused headlines in Arab countries the following day emphasizing the implied physical threat.

Mr. Schlesinger appeared to take a calm and slightly optimistic tone that negotiations on oil pricing would be successful, He repeatedly played down the prospects for military action.

Asked if the use of nulitary force was a "realistic option" for any country in the current economic squeeze, Mr. Schlesinger said he would not speculate on that. But. he emphasized, the United States would not consider any such action." The defense secretary also said that he did not helieve there was any conflict between the two current American policies of openly pressuring oil-producing nations -most of which are in the Persian Gulf-to lower their export prices while at the same time selling vast amounts of arms to those same Persian Guif coun-

We have responded to requests from various nations in the area," he said. "But at no point has the U.S. in any way attempted to induce the nations of this area to purchase equipment from the U.S."

LONDON, Sept. 25 (Reuters) -The Labor government split on the Common Market issue was underlined in the general election campaign today when a cabinet minister, Shirley Williams, said she would quit politics if Britain pulled out of the European Economic Community.

The Labor government received two more joits today. The major shock was Lord Bravley's resignation from the post of samy

The other incident was the resignation from the Labor party of Lord St. Davids, 57, a moderate in the House of Lords. It was the second such action in a week. On Sunday, Lord Chalfont, a former minister, quit the party.

The payments included commissions and expenses paid to Lord Brayley.

In his letter of resignation to Mr. Wilson, Lord Brayley said that he welcomed the decision to have an inquiry under the Companies Act, and was confident he had done nothing illegal or improper.

Although Lord St. Davids is a relatively obscure Labor peer who seldom speaks in the upper house except on his pet subject of boating his resignation during the election campaign was a further psychological blow to the party. Mr. Wilson, presiding over a Cabinet whose members both favor and oppose EEC membership, has pledged to hold a binding hallot of the public within 12 months on whether to stay in the EEC. But first, Labor wants to renegotiate the terms of entry. Mrs. Williams said she believed the issue was of such importance that people should have the op-portunity to make their feelings known. Then she said:

"Speaking for myself, I would not remain in active politics if that referendum goes the wrong way from my point of view."

There is auxiety here about the effects of the German decision on farmers throughout the ninemember community, who contended after last week's meeting that even the intended 5 per cent rise was insufficient to meet their vastly increased costs.

France Sets 51-Billion-Franc Ceiling on 1975 Oil Imports By James Goldsborough

PARIS, Sept. 28 (IRT).-The French government today set an emergency celling of 51 billion francs on the value of oil products imported into France next year. The celling would result in a drop of 10 per cent from this year's volume of oil imports. The ceiling, which economic observers called an "unusual" measure, was announced after today's cabinet meeting. The government also said that if oil prices were further increased. imports would be cut back to stay within the 51-billion-franc (about $10.5-billion) figure. The government announced several other measures to restrain the climbing French oil bill, but indicated that gasoline rationing would not be imposed. The posi-tion here has been that since been strong indications that France will join in the work of the energy agency group that will be set up next month in the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development,

The OECD group is to take over the administration of the energy-sharing program that was agreed to by the 13 members of the Energy Coordinating Group in Brussels last month, a group that France had boycotted under the previous government. That program, which must be approved by the parliaments of the 12 nans, calls for sharing among more-favored and less - favored nations in the event of serious oil shortages.

Some members of that group of 12, such as Norway, a country soon to be a heavy net exporter of oil, have remained highly skeptical of the chances of winning parliamentary approval for the energy-sharing program.

France, which imports virtually all its oil, is bound to be in-terested by any oil-sharing plan. The French trade deficit through July this year was 11.7 billion francs, and the recent increases announced in Vienna by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries can only worsen the balance.

Other measures revealed today include more restrictions on the use of heavy fuel and petroleum products, such as plastics, and a plan to increase coal production in France by 46 million tons by 1983, a rise of more than 50 per The government also is "studying" measures to reduce gasoline consumption through stricter traffic regulations in cities and lower speed limits on highways.

This move is described as part of the effort to give reserve units "real missions" that will both improve their readiness and give active-duty forces more con-tidence in them in wartime.

These potentially far-reaching plans were revealed Monday in a little-noted speech delivered in Puerto Rico by William Brehm, assistant defense secretary for manpower and reserve affairs.

Mr. Brehm's speech also provided details on the extent to which the Army's planned expansion, from 13 to 16 divisions by 1978, depends on the reserves.

The plans, Mr. Brehm said, call for about 30 battalions normally a battalion has about 700 men-of reserve and National Guard troops to help fill the manpower allotment of 11 divisions. They would represent about 25 per cent of the combat power of those divisions.

would join in any mobilization. The most controversial part of the reserve forces plan is certain to be the Pentagon request for the power to call up 50,000 reserves. Either congressional approval or a national emergency declaration is required now.

"We clearly recognize that such authority, if granted, must be used judiciously," Mr. Brehm

Without Mobilization.

Mr. Brehm said the Pentagon also was aware that reserve and National Guard volunteers have provided support without mobilization, such as in last year's Israeli airlift.

"This would continue to be our preferred source of manwhenever and wherever possible," he said. "But there can be instances when we will need selected units of the Guard and reserve quickly to protect the national interest. The proposed legislation will give us the capa-bility to fill this need under

The student boycott has spread to Hyde Park High School the scene of racial fighting yesterday, to Roslindale High and to Charlestown High, near the scene of daily anti-busing demonstrations this week.

At Hyde Park and Roslindale, attendance slipped to about 50 per cent of normal, At Charlestown, only 442 of 2,777 students assigned to high school, junior high and elementary classes showed up. regarded as a barometer of the prevailing propaganda line. It had been a number of months since Prayda had run more than a random anti-American cartoon.

The recent upsurge suggested that the Kremlin no longer felt a need to avoid offending Mr Ford. The attacks on American policy in Cambodia and on Israel, repeated in commentaries, were taken by some Western diplomats as signs of Moscow's un-bappiness about Mr. Ford's policles in these areas.

There is no indication that the Kremlin's interest in détente or in doing business with the White House has slackened.

Joint Space Mission

Soviet and American delega tions yesterday prefficted expan-sion of tourism. Izvestia last week halled Mr. Ford's meeting with Soviet astronauts who are preparing for the joint space mission to 1975. And Soviet officials privately expressed eagerness to settle the trade and emigration dispute with a view to benefiting from larger credits and reduced American tariffs.

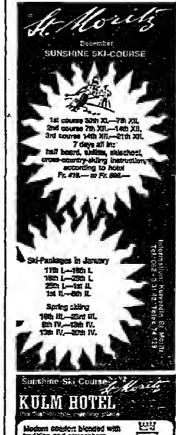

The surge of anti-American propaganda is part of a generally more critical treatment of the West in the Soviet press, according to West European diplomats.

One theory is that Moscow now sees little prospect of an early completion of the European Security Conference because of changes in Western governments and therefore sees no need to soften its propagands.

Why do you think 947 foreign companies set up in Belgium last year?

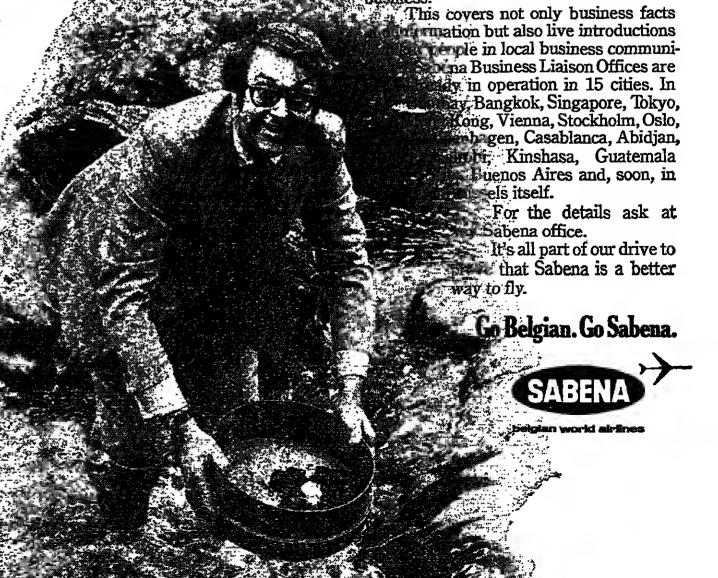

Since Brussels became capital of the Common Market, more and more foreign companies have been making their headquarters in Belgium.

Manufacturers, international banks, food companies, property developers... they're all coming. Why?

First, because Brussels is increasingly the central point of contact and the information bank for the new Europe. If you need facts or you need to meet key people. the place to find them is Belgium.

This means that if you're planning a business trip to Europe, the logical point of entry is Brussels. And the logical way of getting there is, naturally, the airline that knows Brussels best. Sabena.

Apart from the traditional Belgian hospitality which you will enjoy aboard our new wide-bodied Boeing 707's, 737's, 747's and Mc Donnell Douglas DC-10's, Sabena can offer you a unique commercial intelligence service - not just for Belgium but for most countries where you're likely to do business.

GENEVA Sept. 25 (Reuters).— Early snowfalls down to an alti-tude of about 1,500 meters today brought snowplows out on some Swiss roads and sent cattle trekking down to the valleys from mountain pastures ahead of schedule

Plows had to clear upper sec-tions of the Grand Saint-Bernard pass linking Switzerland with Italy yesterday. At Les Diablerets, farther north, a pass was closed and the police advised motorists to use snow tires or

The four-nation commission has been paralyzed in carrying out investigations because the twoparty Joint Military Commission, made up of the Saigon side and the Viet Cong, has suspended operations. The two-party commission is charged under the 20month-old Paris agreement with implementing provisions of the accords and providing liaison for the ICCS. An ideological split among its own member also has rendered the ICCS ineffective. It is made up of Poland, Hungary, Iran and Indonesia.

The peace agreement stipulated that each of the four signatories—the United States, Hanof, Saigon and the Viet Cong-pay 23 per cent of the ICCS budget and the commission members themselves pay the remaining 8 · per cent.

U.K., French Join in Sales Of War Jets

LONDON, Sept. 25 (AP).-The British Aircraft Corp., partner center of the capital, laborers supersonic airliner, said today that it has launched a major effort with the French to supply new warplanes for four European air forces.

Sales director Jeffrey Quill said at a press conference that BAC and the Dassault aviation company of France are seeking to provide a two-plane replacement for the F-104 Starfighter and other combat planes now used by Belgium, the Netherlands, Norway and Denmark.

The replacement deal has been described as the "contract of the century." Aviation sources here reported that the four countries were expected to make a deci-sion soon and that it would have a major impact on the European aerospace industry.

The four countries have a joint committee assessing a singleplane replacement and are currently studying four aircraft—the Swedish Saab Biggen, the Dassault F-1 and the U.S. YF-16 and YF-17.

Mr. Quill said the two-plane package would be at least 20 per cent cheaper to buy than the cheapest single-aircraft replacement so far studied.

The British and French Air Forces are each buying 200 of the $4.8-million Jaguars. The Persian Gulf state of Oman, currently battling Chinese-back-ed guerrillas, and a Latin American state beleved to be Ecuador have ordered an unspecified number of the planes.

U.S. Weighs Lifting Its Embargo on Arms Sales to Pakistan

By Lewis M. Simons

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan, Sept. 25 (WP).-A heavy flow of sophisticated Soviet weapons to India and Afghanistan is leading American defense analysts here to conclude that the United States should resume arms sales to Pakistan.

They see Pakistan as growing mcreasingly isolated and weaker in the South Asia-Middle East region as its neighbors build up military advantages.

Already reduced to half its size and strength by the loss of its eastern wing in the 1970 war with India, Pakistan is fearful that unless the United States resumes arms shipments it will fall easy prey to its enemies.

Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto is stepping up his campaign with U.S. diplomats and congressmen. Although he has sought a resumption of U.S. military aid since shortly after the wars end, Mr. Bhutto is giving his appeals fresh emphasis with the expectation of a visit by Secretary of State Henry Kissinger

Ford Briefed

U.S. sources doubt that any decision will be reached in Washington before the visit, largely because Mr. Kissinger is also scheduled to visit India and Bangis-desh, formerly East Pakistan. However, President Ford is under-stood to be fully briefed on Mr. Bhutto's request and to be giving it "serious consideration."

The United States is prepared for India to "raise hell," a source said, if the arms tap is turned on again after being closed downaside from the "one-time exception" of 1970-since 1965. How-ever, one way to skirt the anticipated Indian outery would be to offer to sell U.S. arms to India. This ploy is being studied.

Mr. Bhutto's U.S. backers see both geopolitical and economic advantages for the United States in selling weapons to Pakistan. For one thing, they claim that

In terms of economic gain, arms sales to Pakistan would return to the United States hundreds of millions of dollars in American funds now being spent on Arab oil.

Kissinger's Warning

In his eloquent, if gloomy, resume before the UN General Assembly, of the threats to world stability, Secretary of State Kissinger emphasized a point often overlooked: Problems that have been at least manageable through the postwar periodlocal rivalries, economic conflicts, the spread of nuclear knowledge-now threaten to besome uncontrollable.

Up to now, the nations may have paid merely a high price for procrastinating on these problems—for muddling through rather than persisting after solutions; for relying on old alogans rather than on unavoidable mp-to-date facts; for permitting "too many of the underlying causes to fester unattended." But in a very short time, for many reasons, Kissinger warned, the price could be catastrophic for the whole world.

"The world has dealt with local conflicts as if they were perpetually manageable," he said. Now there is no guarantee that the next local crisis will not "explode beyond control."

"The world has dealt with nuclear weapons as if restraints were automatic." But with nuclear technology spreading and more nations [India] entering the nuclear weapons club, "nuclear catastrophe looms more plausible—whether through design or miscalculation; accident, theft or blackmail."

as if its constant advance were inexorable" and wider participation in growth were the only problem. Now national, regional and bloc approaches to economic issues and consequent strains in the delicate fabric of international economic cooperation - the manipulation of oil prices and production is the most dramatic example-are threatening to enguli us all in a general depression."

Kissinger was in no doubt about the consequences, for the United Nations and for its member states, of continuing to conduct international business in the same old ways: "A world ever more torn between rich and poor. East and West, producer and consumer; a world where local crises threaten global confrontation and where the spreading atom threatens global peril; a world of rising costs and dwindling supplies, of growing populations and declining production."

This was one of Kissinger's best oratorical efforts: not merely the clear-headed analysis of complex problems, for which he has often been noted, but convincing eloquence about the imperative of cooperation and a "global conception" in an increasingly interdependent but increasingly vulnerable worldcoupled with a sharp reminder that time indeed, is running out,

THE NEW YORK TIMES.

The Italian Visitor

Italy has become, to its misfortune, the extreme example of the disruption inflicted on industrial countries by the revolution in oil prices. The arrival here of Italy's President, Giovanni Leone, may consequently serve a larger purpose than anyone had in mind when the visit was first proposed months ago. Italy's current economic troubles are not unique. To the contrary, the Italians are only more exposed to the effects of the new prices than the rest of as. Imported oil contributes some 80 per cent of the primary energy supply in Italy -compared, for example, to 17 per cent in the United States. President Ford's conversations with his visitor, on the eve of the economic summit meeting, are going to sharpen his own sense of the international meaning of the oil issue. Since American attitudes on this crucial subject are still very finid, and since the President is only beginning to develop his own foreign policy, the Italian visit could hardly have come at a better moment from the U.S. point of view.

But this meeting will serve another purpose, in terms of Italian politics, that is only barely visible from Washington. All state visits are symbolic gestures, and this one comes at a time when, for the first time since 1948, the Communist role in Italian icance. politics is a matter of open discussion among the other parties. By coming to Washington now, President Leone, as the senior figure in the Christian Democratic party, seems to be casting his weight in favor of the traditional alliance and against any new reliance upon Communist support in Italy's domestic

The present inflation and the prospect of higher unemployement this winter are putting great strain on the Italian government, perhaps more than can be met through another routine reshuffling of center-left coalition cabinets. Actually bringing the Communists into the cabinet does not seem to be a possibility. But some of the other parties' political managers are now trying to devise ways to assure some measure of Communist cooperation in the hard decisions ahead. The long isolation of the Communists may be ending. But although President Leone's office is largely ceremonial, he himself remains a man of considerable infinence in the party that has dominated every Italian government since World War II, and he is using this trip to make his own opinion clear. He, like President Ford, is anxiously exploring the possibilities of bringing an old alliance to bear on new perplexities. This is reason enough to give the meetings between the two men special signif-

Ford and Europe

Gerald Ford has been in occupation of the White House for one and a half months now. The outstanding questions about this relatively unknown quantity of a President cannot long remain unanswered, And among those with questions to ask are the Europeans. In some respects, Europe and the United States have been drawing further apart from one another, and there is some doubt whether this summer's fence-mending has completely eliminated the friction from the machinery of the Europe-America alliance. Economic cooperation is at any rate still a trouble spot and the recrudescence of American opposition to keeping troops in Europe and indeed anywhere else abroadwill soon put the continuity of Atlantic policies to the test. It is a test to which Europe, too, must submit. Whatever the Nine may have concocted over dinner in the Elysée in the way of a joint European policy. the question of partnership with America cannot be dodged. . . -- From the Neue Zuercher Zeitung (Zurich).

The Kennedy Vacuum

It will take more than Sen. Kennedy's

"Sherman declaration" to end the speculation about his candidacy for the 1976 election campaign. Some commentators may interpret his "firm, final, and unconditional" opposition to running in 1976 as tactical. It is not unknown for candidates to pretend not to want to run, but Sen Kennedy's statement is in a quite different category. If the rhetoric was not quite as rhythmical as Gen. Sherman's-"If nominated I will not campaign: if elected I will not serve"-his purpose seems as firm. Indeed, if he should run now-or even accept a draft-his credibility could rightly be challenged. ("I said it. I can't find words in the English language that are more clear.") With a son with cancer, a wife who has been receiving psychiatric treatment for mental stress, two brothers who have been assassinated by political fanatics, and several unanswered questions remaining over his own role in Chappaquiddick, Sen. Kennedy has many reasons for withdrawing from the race.

President Ford is not unbeatable. In his first few days in office he did not put a foot wrong, but in granting Mr. Nixon a hurried pardon he demonstrated how easily a president can start losing support. His position is not nearly as strong as commentators were suggesting. It is doubtful whether any president would be able to do enough to satisfy the American public on the problem of inflation, but several could have made a better start than Mr. Ford.

Oil Price Squeeze

Despite the lifting of the oil embargo and the reduction in gasoline consumption throughout the Western world, the industrialized nations have not gained decisive advantages over oil-producing countries, which have kept up their prices and reduced production while engaging on the road of nationalization. Because of the worsening of their balance-of-payments deficit, the disordered state of world financial mechanism and galloping inflation, Europe and Japan cannot absorb the shock of a new large-scale offensive by oil-exporting countries which, apparently intoxicated with success, are ready to press for new price increases in

'Nobody Drowned at Watergate'

By James Reston

DOGARTOWN, Mass.—Sen. Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts said that he pulled out of the 1976 presidential election campaign because of his responsibilities to his family-and this is widely accepted as true but obviously there were political conalderations as well.

For the last few weeks, inves-tigative reporters from Time magazine, the Boston Globe and other publications have been here on Martha's Vineyard island re-viewing every detail of the Kennedy Chappaquiddick tragedy.

Here, perhaps more than anywhere else, the death of Mary Jo Kopechne in a car driven over the Dyke Bridge by Sen, Kennedy, has remained a live and hitter controversy. On this island—aside from everything else —leaving a body in the water is unforgivable, Some members of the grand jury that examined the case expressed dissatisfaction with the unanswered and sometimes contradictory testimony in the

The foreman of the grand jury, Leslie Leland, a druggist in Vineyard Haven, has been particularly outspoken and critical about the way the case was handled, and he has recently been talking to Mike Wallace of CBS about discussing his doubts on Wallace's "Sixty Minutes" television pro-

It is not to be assumed from this that Leland or any of the other grand jurors are claiming to have any startling new evidence in the case, but merely that some of them feel the inquiry was not as complete as it should have been, and certainly not as meticulous as the political and legal proceedings that led to the res-ignation of President Nixon.

Accordingly, as Kennedy remained ahead in the preference polls for the 1976 Democratic presidential nomination, there was considerable pressure on newspapers and the networks to demonstrate that they were going to review Chappaquiddick as carefully as they had investigated Water-

This may have had something to do with the timing of the senator's withdrawal, if not with the actual decision itself. For the longer he remained in the race, the clearer it became that the tragedy of Chappaquiddick was going to be replayed in the headlines and on the television screens not just next year, but through the campaign of '76.

Who Knows?

Maybe this was not a factor in the senator's decision—who knows what is in the mind of Kennedy, Nixon, Rockefeller these days?— but the bumper sticker "Nobody Drowned at Watergate" was an ominous symbol of the victous things to come. Kennedy seems to believe that he could have survived it, won the nomination, lost 10 points on Chappaquiddick and picked up 20 on Watergate, but even if he had won, he would have divided his family, his party, and the country. And after a decade of war, seandal, and moral and political disarray, Kennedy's decision to withdraw must have seemed to many an act of liberation for himself, his family, his party, and the nation. In a way, when Nixon finally walked the plank, he took Ken-nedy over the side with him. The American people of all political persuasions are tired, sad and ashamed of the frustrations and moral squalor of the age, and worried about the effects of all this on their children. To choose between Watergate and Chappaquiddick in a savage personal campaign during the 200th anniversary of the Declaration in '76 seemed too much, even to many of the most enthusiastic supportattractive personality. In the last few years, he has become a more eloquent and impressive speaker in a big hall than any of his brothers or any of his competitors in either party. He has done in this that is hard to escape or define. But for the sudden acci-

ers of President Kennedy and his dent here on the Chappaquiddick bridge five years ago, as for the starting/shots that killed his two brothers, he would undoubtedly have moved into the White House in the election of 1976. And the irony is that, by that accident, he was startled into both maturity and responsibility, and in the same instant destroyed as a presidential candidate for the foresceable future. Actually, he is probably a more stable and dependable presidential character now than ever in his life—he has learned by failing and suffering—but there is some flaw or accident in the Kennedy clan that defies their ambitions, and in the end, he had to go. The surprising thing is that he recognized it. Old Joe, the Founding Father, probably would not have agreed. The guess here, on some knowledge of the Old Man, is that he would have wanted the last son to tough it out. But the senator took the other road and, both personally and politically, he was

Wallace: Democratic Trojan Horse

By Rowland Evans and Robert Novak

MONTGOMERY, Ala.—Con-founding the hopes of Democratic leaders, Gov. George Wal-lace is slowly committing himself not to any ephemeral third-party presidential race in 1976 but to a drive for power within the Democratic party centered on 24 presidential primaries.

With the sudden power vacuum created by the "no draft" withdrawal of Sen. Edward Kennedy, the specter so hideous to the na-tional Democratic party of Wallace rampant in the spring primaries begins to take threatening shape. Only Wallace now has a hard-core, dedicated national constituency.

At the least, this distorts Democratic primaries across the country. At the worst, it means Wallace may well enter the convention with the largest single bloc of first-ballot votes-largest by far, perhaps,

'Or Else'

If so, he would then be a Troian horse inside the Democratic convention in position to make this demand: Make me your vicepresidential pominee-or else. The "or else" is now being plotted by Wallace's top political operatives, headed by Charles Snider—not yet as a certainty but as a coutingency. If the party refused to give Wallace the second spot on the ticket (a refusal which today would be assured). Wallace would then walk ballots as a third-party nominee. If he left the party in anger after the party's December midterm convention in Kansas City, delighted Democratic leaders would be spared Wallace in the primaries and would expect him to drain conservative votes from the Republicans, as in 1968. But if Wallace bolts in the summer of 1976, after entering the national convention as frontrunner following multiple primary triumphs, he could be perceived as a victim of party discrimina-tion. In that case, the Republicans might well be helped in November. So, the Wallace threat is credible Moreover, Wallace can wait health. Assured of re-election as gov-

cial question of when Wallace ernor on Nov. 5, he is talking more philosophically these days, particularly about the economic crisis. Let inflation continue its present course, he said, and it will lead to a calamity-"the radicalization of the great middle class." With the United States now urbanized, he warned that the "cushion" for younger upemployed workers and their wives to return to the family farmstead to wait out the crisis no longer

Wallace is searching for a Wallace economic plan. He scorns what is coming out of Washington, both from the White House and from Democratic leaders. Comparing the American condition today to the decline and fall of the Roman Empire, he sees an ever-more-powerful Russia, a United States unable to affect the price of oil and at least two more years of runaway inflation.

Wallace's plan: an economic recovery program to take to the country. Considering Wallace's skill in offering simplistic, sugarcoated, often demagogic solutions, such a plan could have potent political force.

Money Base

A new link to Richard Vigueries's right-wing fund-raising operations has regularized Wallace's campaign finances. His list of assured contributors, now over 250,000, is expanding at the rate of 100,000 a year. He took in $1 million the last nine months; much of it then rolled over to develop larger (fully computerized) contributor lists. No other Democrat has nearly so broad a money base.

Wallace plans to go—"quietly, I hope"—to the Kansas City convention. A private letter to major Wallace contributors mailed last week tells why: "Gov. Wallace is making plans to represent you and vigorously voice his objection to any plans for the adoption of a [perty] charter that resembles the platform that came out of the 1972 convention."

He is constructing his grand design prudently, to the anguish of anti-Wallace party leaders who wish he would go third party well before 1976. "They're not afraid of me," he told us. "They're afraid of the people I represent."

Counter-Unit To Oil Cartel: A Tall Order

By Joseph Kraft

WASHINGTON.—The brave words spoken by the President and the secretaries of state and the Treasury about the international oil cartel served a useful purpose. They have created an atmosphere of crisis in which it is possible to junk the old policy and create a new one.

But the international oil hand is very hard to play. It is a deep question whether the Ford administration has the skill and experience necessary to organize, here at home and with this country's allies, the counter-cartel that can arrest price increases. The old policy on oil was developed by Treasury Secretary William Simon with the approval of Secretary of State Henry Kis-singer. The basic idea was to court Saudi Arabia with special offers of military assistance and investment opportunity.

Easing Price

In return the Saudis were sup-posed to work within the oil producers cartel (or OPEC) for an easing of the price which had quadrupled since last year. After Mr. Simon visited Saudi Arabia last month, he predicted that there would in fact be a price

But when OFEC met in Vienna on Sept. 12, it took action to raise prices. So the statements made by Mr. Ford and Secretaries Kissinger and Simon last week were a riposte to a sisp in the face. They served notice that the old Mr. Nice Guy policy is now done. In formulating a new policy, the first element is a realization that the oil price cannot be broken simply by Saudi Arabia. The Saudis are too vulnerable to the pressure of inter-Arab politics to swing the deal alone. They need the protective coloring of a couple of other members of the

The obvious candidates are Venezuela and Iran, two producing countries outside the Arab world. Because both are friendly to the West and need oil revenues immediately for economic development, they are sensitive to the policies of the United States and

If it came to a choice between cutting production or cutting price, they would probably be prepared to cut price. Particularly if the cut in price were associated with concessions by the United States and its allies on defense and trade, The condition for putting Iran and Venezuela in the presence of a choice between price and pro duction is easy to describe. To be effective, of cours American cut in consum-would have to be supplemen. by similar measures in Japan a Western Europe. There would have to be a counter-cartel. The Japanese and Europeans would probably demand as condition for joining the United States that America undertake to meet their emergency oil needs in a crunch and further that there he an end to discriminatory policies by which American companies have fenced foreign companies out of the international petroleum field.

In an atmosphere of crisis, all these measures could be taken. Officials in the Federal Energy Administration, the State Department and the Treasury have all done work on contingency planning. At Camp David this week, the finance and foreign ministers of the United States, Britain, France, Japan and West Germany will meet to coordinate international oil policy. The presence of France so long absent from such joint efforts shows what could be done in the crisis atmosphere.

But all this is a very tall order. It is not clear that any of the parties—the allies, the American public, the Congress or even the administration—are fully prepar-ed for the drastic measures required to put together an effective counter-cartel. Oil rationing and higher taxes on oil, for instance, would come as a big surprise to most people. So it is at least possible that the Ford administration has moved too abruptly from apathy to panic. It may have to postpone a showdown, and it might emerge from this affair looking like a man who speaks loudly and carries a small stick

It has to be said that, at least in Mr. Dornberg's sense, the Ger-

President Ford certainly struck an ironic note in his press con-ference of Sept. 17 when he pledged to continue his policy of "openness and honesty," yet more or less tacitly acknowledged the "historical right" of the United States and other governments to meddle in ("restabilize") the legally elected governments of their neighbors. Is this Ford doctrine based upon the precedent of Hitler's "destabiliza-tion" of Poland, Holland, Denmark, France, et al.? Or is it based on Russia's "restabilization" of Hungary and Czechoslovakia? That a nation founded on the principle of popular autonomy should be party to such a cynical policy is criminal.

The 6,000 Americans Who Retired in Poland

By Judy Coates

WARSAW (IHT) .-- Pnlee point out how well retired U.S. citizens live in Warsaw and wish Poles were poor like that.

They find it absurd that people who receive $150 in Social Security payments a month in the United States pinch pennies as Poles do in Poland. In Warsaw, pensioners who receive Security checks have the newest apartments, wall-to-wall carpeting and appliances that

Since pensioners have enough money to buy washers and dryers, their wives are relieved of boiling sheets and scrubbing laundry by hand, as many Polish

Unlike the Polish citizens, pensioners frequently attend the npers and playe and dinc weekly in expensive restaurants instead of the crowded "milk bars" -soup kitchens.

The pensioners have fine furniture, cars and furs and other personal items which they are allowed to bring, duty-free, when establishing households.

The retired people—about 6,000 moved to Poland for a number of reasons: To return to the land and language of their vouth, to travel or simply to feel safe on city streets. The main reason, though, is that the U.S. dollar stretches farther in Poland than it does in the United States.

A Bonanza

Pensioners receive 60 zlotys per U.S. dollar from the PKO, the Polish National Bank, A $150 Social Security check in Poland means 9,000 zlotys per month, a bonanza in comparison to Polish Foland earn about 6,000 glotys a time of acute financial worry Mrs. Meex has a financial in-per month; office department due to illness and inflation. dependence to do what she heads earn about 4,000 zlotys, both considered good salaries.

But an average month's food costs more than 1,000 zlotysand prices have increased this year, with gasoline rising from 5 zlotys to 9 zlotys a liter. (That means almost 60 cents a gallon for U.S. pensioners; tourists pay equivalent of $1.80

Due to low wages, many Polish mothers work, leaving youngsters with elderly relatives or neighbors. It is not unusual to find men holding two or three jobs, despite Poland'e six-day work week. (Normally Saturday is a six-hour work day, but the government declared five "free" Saturdays this year and promises more next year).

amount to roughly one-half their working wage, which barely covers necessities. But even retired persons who receive union or company pen-sions in addition to Social Security checks pinch permies in Chicago or New York City, according to Bessie Miccz, 72, of

who has dipped into her savings

several times since she retired from the garment industry. "All my savings are gone now; I had to draw mouey out every month in New York to pay the rent," she said. "How can you afford the opera in New York? I could never go after I retired in 1966." She and many other older Americans have worked decade: only to find retirement brought

To live in Poland, U.S. citizens on pensions must buy a modern apartment with U.S. dollars through the PKO in New York or Chicago before moving to Poland. The cost varies between $4,000 and $6,000 depending upon size. (Houses cost between $10,000 and $12,000 and are for those who want to live in the countryside.)

Making arrangements with the Polish government takes nearly a year: some have waited two years for an apartment, (Polish citizens themselves must wait seven to eight years, unless they have foreign currency instead of zlotys to pay with.)

After the initial purchase, monthly maintenance bill of 360 to 660 zlotys ($6 to $11) is the only charge. Electricity costs about 200 zlotys ($2.20) per month and telephones 100 zlotys ($1.66). Eating well, a monthly food bill for one person is 2,000 ziotys ($33) and there are no sales taxes, property taxes or mortgages.

Some Prices

Some consider it too much bother to bring their belongings from the United States, as did Mrs. Miecz, who brought only her

"Everything I need I can buy cbeaper here." Mrs. Miccs said, pointing out that a couch costs 2,000 zlotys ($33), a little refriger-ator 700 zlotys ($12) and a "good kitchen set with four chairs" 950 dependence to do what she dreamed about: travel to the Soviet Union, Czechoelovakia,

France and Italy. "I never could do this before because transportation from the United States is so expensive," she

"And I'll return for a stay once a year to the States because of course I couldn't stay away from my family," said Mrs. Mlecz, the grandmother of five.

Travel is not so easy for Polish citizens. To travel to a non-Communist country, a Pole must get a notarized invitation from a citizen of that country, who promises to pay expenses and provide medical care for him. After that, he must go through the tedious process of applying for a passport, which may or may not be approved without explanation. Poles traveling abroad are permitted to take only $100 in foreign currency out of the country.

The Polisb government, however, is quite relaxed with U.S. retirees. They are free to travel on their U.S. passports and may purchase tickets on the Polish National Airlines (LOT) in glotys.

Trip to U.S.

A trip to the United States and back costs about 13,000 zlotys ($217). (From the United States to Poland, the cost is more than $700 for a round-trip ticket. The U.S. Social Security checks, however, are not checks at all: They are vouchers which can ba used only in Poland, according to U.S. Consul Michael Cline in Warsaw. Recipients receive 80 per cent of their money in zlotys called "boni." According to Mr. Cline, boni are nearly as valuable as dollars in Poland. Retirees use boni to purchase products imported from other countries, virtually inaccessible to Poles who have only zlotys. Boni, like hard cash, have the added value of putting the bearer first in line for hard-to-get coneumer items.

The lateness of the checks arriving from the United States is the major drawback for retirees in Poland and is their favorite topic of conservation.

One Christmas

"The checks are always late, close to the end of the month," Mr. Cline said. "One horrible example was when they came late last Christmas. This is the only source of income for most of these people. We shoot off telegrams to Washington but it doesn't seem to do any good." Although Social Security checks are only routed through the consulate, Mr. Cline fields complaints in the absence of a Social Security representative. He pointed out that retirees are denied U.S. Medicare benefits. But in Poland, medical bills are so low U.S. retirees are undisturbed.

Adam Kozikowski, 76, formerly of .Allentown, Pa., now of Warsaw, laughed when he talked about a medical bill he received a couple of years ago for an operation on his hand.

thing," he said. "It was so low take, so I asked the doctor. He felt sort of bad and explained that because I was not a Polish citizen, they were forced to charge me something." A set of false teeth cost him 1,200 zlotys ($20) and new lenses for his glasses 120 zlotys ($2).

Medical costs have gone up since then but U.S. retirees in Poland are still smiling and canceling their medical insurance policies, as did Castmir Nowacki, 70, a 20-year resident of both Los Angeles and New York, Now he lives in Warsaw.

He and his wife, Grace, who have been living in Poland six years, pay 60 zlotys ($1) for a visit to a general practitioner. If their doctor refers them to a specialist or physical therapist, the only additional expense is a tip, Mr. Nowacki said.

The disadvantages of living in Poland rate as minor irritations.

Production of consumer items is uneven in Poland, causing all stores to be short of certain things for weeks. Standing in line for 15 minutes to be walted on in stores is not unusual; selfservice groceries are just begin ning to emerge.

And telephone installation involves a wait of a year or two because there are not enough lines in the newer parts of War. 58.W.

In the central part of town only one high-rise apartment building is open now to U.S. re-tirees. When that building is full, retirees will have to live on the outskirts of town. The Polish government allowe U.S. retirees to engage in small businesses or specialized crafts, but a lot of discouraging red tape is involved.

The retirees subscribe to the U.S. newspapers and magazines they want, but their letters from arrive in little plastic bags, compliments of the Polish government. Mr. Nowacki said it is done only to insure that no undeclared U.S. currency is entering Poland. (Black-marketeers get 100 slotys or more per dollar in Poland.)

Homesickness for the United States, however, is one thing that doesn't seem to plague U.S. retirees, most of whom spoke Polish before moving to Poland. Mrs. Nowacki—who accompanied her Polish husband to Warsaw but who is not Polish her-self—said, "I worked hard when I was in the States and I don't miss it a bit. I don't have time to be homesick. And I am so happy here."

Her husband vetoed buying a washer and dryer. "I told Grace no, we came to Poland for a better life," Mr. Nowacki sald. "If Polisb citizens send their laundry ont to have it done, so can we."

It brought Anthony Beach from England to stage it and engaged lurgen Henze to provide the decor. Walter Hagen-Groll has done his customary excellent Ronald Hynd has created lively choreography. Donald Grobe, in the leading role, does a stunning job. Yet one must reluctantly classify the overall product as a disappointment.

On the credit side, Donald Grobe as Gustay von Aschenbach tops everyone else by a extremely difficult music during the first minutes of the opera, with no chance to warm up, but Grobe from the beginning show-ed remarkable security and anthority. Even Germans in tho audieoce praised this American tenor's German diction.

Rolf Kühne also drew strong applause for the six roles assigned to him, all of them adding up to the numerous roles expertly.

Alfonso Pinero danced the mute role of Tadzio, who gradually becomes the object of Aschenpact, with a long torso and relativeness, but his makeup did him no favor by going too far toward a mysterious personage who seems to steer Aschenbach toward ment, and death. Other regulars of this excellent ensemble filled bach's helpless infatuation. Comtively short legs, he both moved and danced with youthful seducthe epicene.

Aschenbach's slowly awakening, reluctant, hopeless yearning for Tadzio constitutes the entire drama of Mann's sad little tale. For a variety of reasons, that yearning—a state of mind, after ail—does not become credible m this production. One wonders whether it really could in any.

ON THE ARTS AGENDA

An American organist. George Baker, 23, has won the grand prize for interpretation of the (France, organ competition, and two honorable mentions in the same category went to a South African, Willem Vilioen, and another American, William Paul Haller. No grand prize in improvisation was award-ed in this year's competition, which attracted a total of 35 entries. It has also been announced that in the future the competition, which heretofore has taken place ennually on the organ of the Chartres Cathedral, will be held every two years.

Loans French companies arrange abroad are not subject to control. This loophole, while favoring large, internatic ally known companies, has been tolerated because the proceeds of these loans, when converted for francs at home, boost the nation's foreign currency holdings needed to finance this year's oil-inspired trade deficit of some 24 billion francs (about $5 billion). This inflow is expected to accelerate in light of the latest credit cut-and by driving industry to expand its exports.

Credits needed to finance production aimed for export are exempt from the restrictions. Short-term export credits, which had been allowed to rise 19 per cent this month over the 1973 month, will increase 22 per cent in October, November and December from the corresponding year-ago month, the Finance Ministry reported today.

Bankers say that one effect of the credit controls is to encourage industry to run down its supplies since it will be difficult and costly to find the money to finance new purchases.

This will reduce imports in the case of foreign supplies and prices by easing demand for ome-made goods. Bankers also see the credit re-strictions leading to a cutback in industry's spending on new equipment. While this may entail sacrificing some of the economy's potential growth, they point out it will also reduce imports as much of industry's heavy equipment comes from abroad.

U.S. Aides Rule Out Economic 'Quick Fix'

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25 tight," said Dawson Ahalt, the (NYT).—The outlook for world department's assistant chief econgrain production, with governments already worried nver increasing hunger, has grown worse in the last month, the Department of Agriculture reported yesterday.

The department's latest projections show that wheat prospects for the crop year that began July 1 are 8.9 million tons below last month's forecast, and coarse grains, mainly livestock feed, are down 3.5 million tons.

The deterioration resulted mainly from weather developments, such as drought in Siberian grain-production areas, and frost threating late-maturing crops in Canada.

The report said the world is likely to wind up the year with even smaller food reserves than expected, despite a predicted 26.6 million-ton decline in global con-

The cepartment also gave its first official prediction for world rice crops, saying the ontlook was for a decline of I per cent. One encouraging element was an indication that less of the grain would be fed to live stock.

while "nothing new really came forth" from the footbill meetings, the discussions did serve to focus the attention of the meetings on areas "we had not given sufficient weight to before,"

And Mr. Greenspan said that the importance of the meetings was not the ideas that came up as much as the key areas on which the discussions focused and would therefore receive special consideration by the administra-

Biggest Mutual Fund in U.S. Is Subject of Probe by SEC

MINNEAPOLIS, Sept. 35 (AP-DJ).-Investors Diversified Services Inc. (IDS), whose mutual fund assets of $5.5 billion are the largest in the United States, is the target of a Securities and Exchange Commission investigation that could have significant percussions on

If any charges are brought, however, they would bring damaging publicity for the beleaguered securities industry, and they could result in severe sanctions against some brokerage houses. At the moment, the probe centers on the activities of William Langfield, IDS's former chief trader for over-the-counter securities. Besides overseeing the trading in IDS's $250-millionplus holdings in OTC stocks, the 39-year-old Mr. Langfield, over the past four years, traded repeatedly for his personal ac-

SEC officials decline to discuss the investigation. Wall Street sources, however, say the SEC is trying to determine whether Mr. Langfield got preferential treatment from brokerage houses to enable him to buy stocks below their market price or got other breaks that would enhance his chances for gain.

The SEC also is said to be looking into whether Mr. Langfield violated securities laws by

Pirelli Loss Narrows to $4 Million

MILAN, Sept. 25 (AP-DJ).— Pirelli SpA, the holding company for Industrie Pirelli SpA, the Italian rubber group, today announced a loss of 2.6 billion lire ($4 million) in the year ended April 30, sharply narrower than the loss of 26.3 billion lire the year before.

The board of directors has decided to cover the loss from reserves so as to submit to the shareholders' assembly Friday a no profit-no loss balance.

Pirelli SpA, which is linked by an integration agreement to Dun-lop Holdings Ltd., of Britain, noted its results were conditioned by the negative results of Industrie Pirelli, which posted a loss of 16.8 billion lire for 1973. This was, bowever, less than balf the 1972 deficit.

Pirelli SpA, owns a 51 per cent interest in Industrie Pirelli with the balance controlled by Dun-lop. It said the recovery of the rubber group was hampered by production losses linked to labor unrest and to underutlization of

Other negative factors were sharp increases in the cost of raw materials and money and the energy crisis, which resulted in slack demand for autos and tires.

Cologne Council Bars Herstatt Compensation

COLOGNE, Sept. 25 (AP-DJ) .--City administrative chief Helnz Mohnen has obtained authority to seek higher compensation for Cologne's deposits at the collapsed Bankhaus Herstatt than the 40 per cent suggested by a neutral mediator.

Mayor John van Nes Ziegler said following a meeting of the city's finance committee that Mr. Mohnen has been "delegated to negotiate further in this matter." The committee found the proposed compensation plan to be "in every respect unsatisfactory for the city of Cologne."

Stocks Drop Despite Cut In Bank Rate

Inflation, Trade Gap Outweigh Prime Move

NEW YORK, Sept. 25 (IHT).— Prices closed mixed on the New York Stock Exchange today after failing to hold strong rally gains on a prime rate cut by several banks. Advances led declines but the Dow Jones industrial average Jeclined 4.15 points to 649.95.

The average was off 6 points in early trading and bounced to a gain of 14 points when Morgan Guaranty Trust cut its prime rate to 11 3.4 per cent from 12 per cent.

Gaining issues led decliners about 830 to 560 at the close, and volume totaled 17.62 million shares, up sharply from 9.84 milllou yesterday. Although First Notional Bank of Chicago said the cost of money dld not justify a prime-rate cut, Chase Manhottan of New York and several smaller banks followed Morgan's reduction. Analysts said the cut had been anticipated and many investors had planned to sell into a rally on the news.

In addition, international nil litters, inflation, talk of food shortages stemming from disappointing grain crops, and the record U.S. trade deficit last month appeared to mulifle some of the optimism that emerged initially ou the prione-rate onnouocement.

The American Stock Exchange index closed down 0.08 to 65.92. On the over the counter market, the NASDAQ Industrial average fell 0.33 to 57.74. The prime-rate cut failed to have much lasting impact on the bond markets. The market, which opened slightly lower, moved ahead on the news, but then slipped back in late trading to close unchang-ed to slightly easier on balance.

Analysts noted that despite the cut, the fundamentals remain largely unchanged. Morgan's action follows a slight lessening in money market pressures over the past couple of weeks, but does not reflect any loosening of the monetary rein, by the Federal for the year ending March 31, 1975, will be lower than in fiscal 1974 despite what it said were record monthly sales in July and August. "Unfortunately, such is the financial climate that we have now to endure that this growth in our business is not producing the level of prof-its we would like to see," the company says. Sir Derek Pritchard, chairman, says the company's profit margins remain under pressure as statutory price controls in Britain and other countries make it difficult to achieve all the necessary increases in the company's selling prices for its tobacco products.

Cavenham Sees Higher Overseas Net Cavenham, the U.K. food processor and distributor, expects higher overseas profit in the year ending next. March but lower domestic profit, says chairman James Goldsmith. Sales are rimning at a yearly level of more than £14 billion, of which some 70 per cent is overseas business. Overall trading profits are expected to be "respectable in a very difficult year." he said. Cavenham sales for the year ended last March were £737.05 million, up from £461.68 million a year earlier. Profits rose to £14.74 mil-Bon from £14.24 million.

A banker can be more useful than a bank.

However well organized, a bank never has the intuition, accessability or dynamism of the individual banker. A bank has no imagination. It will not call to your attention new business opportunities in Tokyo or Sao Paulo. And it will not come up with innovative solutions to financing problems, but the individual banker can.

At Bankers Trust Paris, we are a small team of bankers, trained in international markets, on the look out for the services our bank can offer you. In France or any other part of the world.

We are bankers capable of sharing your enthusiasm for your projects, of suggesting formulas best adapted to your development in France or abroad: we can provide such services as local or euro financing, buyers' or sellers' credits, foreign exchange, discovery of far away markets.

Bankers capable also of stopping you in time, if advisable, before putting in motion the banking institution without which, it must be admitted, there would be neither business nor bankers.

THE CAMBERWELL BEAUTY

By V. S. Pritchett. 211 pp. Random House. $5.95.

Reviewed by Anatole Broyard

IN the title story of "The Cam- no longer a passive or lazy busiherwell Beauty," a young antique the dealer falls in love with the adopted daughter of another antique dealer, only to see her married off to a third elderly dealer who keeps her locked up and simply looks at her each night with the lust of a porcelain

The girl's husband warns her against other men, alleging that they are all as bad as her adopted father, who used to try to get into her bed. When her husband is out of the shop, the girl, who may be half-witted, plays a marching drum and blows a bugle to "frighten" away possible rapists or seducers. After an un-successful try, the young entique dealer is disappointed in his love for her and the story ends.

Now, V. S. Pritchett is far too expert and experienced a literary man to write such a story out of incompetence or pretentiousness, so it would be interesting to examine the piece and see what it does and does not do and try to uncover Mr. Pritchett's underlying aesthetic. Since most of the stories in this collection ap-peared in the New Yorker magazine, they may be regarded as exemplifying a style, one in which that magazine may be said to have pioneered and that has become the dominant style among highly regarded contemporary

To begin with, I am struck with the absence of ordinary motives in most of the characters' actions. Why does the otherwise reasonable young dealer fall in love with this girl? She is pretty, but he has lots of other pretty girls who are neither half-witted nor locked up nor married. Why does she believe that beating a drum and blowing a bugle will keep off predatory men? Why is she satisfied to be the "collector's item" of an unattractive and impotent old man when she could presumably have done better for herself?

Why is the young dealer frus-trated in his love for her when Mr. Pritchett might just as easily have satisfied him? I would answer all these ques-tions by surmising that such short stories have given up exploring motives and illustrating characters as being too simple, unworthy of the name of art, almost redundant. "To tell a good story" is a condescending expression in the world of serious writing. It might be acceptable at a party or in a bar, but not in print. Instead of "plucking out the heart of my mystery," as Hamlet put it, most of the better-known short-story writers now prefer to present the mystery of character. The story gives you a few clues and the rest is up to you. Reading fiction is

I believe we are being encouraged to see significant behavior as irrational and unconscious, based on impulses so subtle, so complex, on imputes the state of the sta Human personality has progressed from a monolith to an ambiance.

"Did You Invite Me?" works in much the same way. A widower and a divorcee get married for DO reason that I can discern but the reason that I can discern but the fact that they live opposite the same park and their dogs have a fight there. They do not seem attractive to one another—or to me either—nor could they be called compatible, any more than their dogs are. Mr. Pritchett mischievously challenges us to grees at their motives. guess at their motives.

Some of these stories give one more turn to the technique just described. A young Englishman, having just lost his virginity to an older Frenchwoman after admitting to her that the only naked woman ha ever saw was one who had been strangled, finds that she is telling people she is afraid of him and saying, "Have you seen his hands?" I don't know whether this is her joke-he is very shy and gentle—whether she is trying to glamorize him as a passionate brute, whether she is a masochist. . . I could go on in-definitely. And perhaps that is the answer: One could go on indefinitely, probing the imponderables of personality

"Marvelous Girl" and "Our Wife? do not even live up to the requirements of this particular genre. They are too thin. There are no interstices for us to work in, not enough pieces for the jig-saw puzzle. As someone—E. M. Forster?—said, plot differs from anecdote in being connected by causation rather than by chro-nology. Whatever distilled form of "causation" the new short story employs, it is not present in these two stories.

"The Lady From Guatemala" is the best story in "The Camber-well Beauty." An editor of a London newspaper that has just published three articles on the plight of women in Guatemala is visited by one of these very women who has crossed the ocean to thank him. He is off on a lecture tour and she follows him all over Europe until her presence unnerves him. In an epic poem, she asks him to "liberate" her and books herself into his hotel room as his wife. She is "squat, ugly." a type that repels him, but as he orders her out of his room the "heat," the palpableness of her humanity touches him in a way he has never experienced. He transcends his finicky prejudices, his snobbish, narcissistic catego-ries, and for a moment of unprecedented abandon, accepts his species with an open mind and heart.

Whether these stories "succeed" or not, most of them are "readabla" at the very least. Perhaps this readability derives from their "mystery" even if we Dever come to understand it. I think I would rather be puzzled by my fellow creatures than see an author 'lay the brain upon the board/and pick the acrid colors out." It would be nice, too, to think that, after centuries of "plucking" our "mystery" is beginning to get its own back.

Mr. Broyard is a New York

the 1973 North American team in Brazil that had the satisfaction of punishing the world's most famous partnership on the diagramed deal.

North and South were Benito Garozzo and Giorgio Belladonna of Italy, superstars who count their world titles in two figures. A look at the North-South hands makes it clear that four hearts is a very poor contract. Garozzo was, as always, aggressive when he opened an 11-point hand in third position and then raised his partner's hearts to the threelevel. He would perhaps have passed two hearts, but he was faced by an unusual two notrump bid from West, showing length in the black suits.

South might have considered that he had shown a good suit and a pear-opening bid when he jumped to two hearts after passing originally and that North would probably have doubled two no-trump or bid a game himself with any hand that offered good prospects. As it was, his decision to continue was fatal Three spades was an imaginative effort, perhaps made with a view to three no-trump—a con-tract that would have come close to success. But North naturally reverted to hearts, and East made an excellent penalty double. He knew that his opponents were at full stretch, and that everything would break badly.

Doubling the opponents in a freely bid game contract is usually an error, but East had chosen to leave the declarer in his hand. The club acs was used as an entry to dummy, and the heart ten was led for a successful fi-nesse. The next heart finesse had to be won in the closed hand, and the declarer tried to get back to dummy to repeat the procedure by ruffing his winning club honor. But East overruffed and was able to reach his partner by underleading the dismond ace. A spade ruff complet-ed South's discomfiture, and as he still had a diamond loser he was down three for a penalty of 500 points.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25 (UPI) .-Don Highsmith ran for two touchdowns end Ike Thomas returned a fumble 28 yards for another score last night as the New York Stars trimnicd the Detroit Wheel, 37-7, in a World Football League game.

Highsmith, subbing for injured starter Boh Gladicux, corried 14 times for 97 yards in the first half, including a pair of oneyard touchdown runs that sparked the Stars to an early 15-0

Only 21 seconds after Highsmith's second touchdown, Thomas scooped up a fumble by Detroit's Sam Scarber on the Wheel's 38 and scooted unmolested down the left sideline to increase New York's lead to 22-0 at the 3:01 mark of the second quarter.

Detroit, losing for the 12th time in 13 games, got its only score midway through the second quarter when quarterback Bubba Wyche, unable to find a receiver, scramhled 13 yards into the end zone for a touchdown. The victory increased the Stars' record 8-5 and moved them within a half-game of first-place Florida in the Eastern Division.

is so great I want to share it with everybody.

This is my latest pipe dream: A man comes into my office with a large suitcase. "Hi," he says, "my name's Nelson Rockefeller, but my friends call me Rocky." "I'm sorry," I say. 'I'm not interested in buying anything."

"No, you don't understand. I'm president of the United States and, in order to prove there is no Buchwald conflict of interest. I've decided to give up all my worldly goods." "That's very nice, but why come to me?"

"Well." Bockefeller replies, "I just don't want to give my worldly goods to anybody. I want to give my fortune to a person who has a responsibility toward the public and will not abuse the power that money brings-someone who won't just throw it away on wine, women and song."

"I can see that," I say. "Happy and I were talking the other night with some friends and your name came up. They said you would be the only person would know what to do with great sums of wealth."

I blush. "That's very nice, Rocky, but I just couldn't accept your money, After all, I hardly KIDOW DOD."

"Look," Rocky says, opening up the suitcase, "I've talked it over with my brothers and they are in complete agreement. They want to make you an honorary

I hold up my hand. "I'm sorry, but taking another man's fortune is out of the question. Just for curiosity's sake, though, what are we talking about?"

Roughly $182 million, including trusts for all the children." I whistle. "It's very tempting, Rocky, but if this ever got out my colleagues in the press corps would think you were trying to buy me."

"No one will ever know," he replies, as he takes a large stack of securities out of his suitcase and throws them on my desk. "What are those?" I ask

"Three hundred and eight thousand shares of Exxon, And here are 206,000 shares of Standard Oil of California, and here is a stack of tax-free municipal bonds worth $10 million."

"Please," I tell him, "you're get-ting my desk all messed up." Rocky keeps going back into the suitcase. "You want IBM stock, I have IBM stock; you want Caterpillar Tractor. I've got Ceterpillar Tractor. Here, take my 17,000 shares of Dow Chem-

"Look," I tell him, "I'm awfully busy. I have an appointment with my barber in 15 minutes. Perhaps you could come back another time."

"Don't send me away," Rocky begs. "You're the only one who knows what to do with inherited wealth. How can I go back to Happy and my brothers and tell them you turned me down?" "This means a lot to you, doesn't it. Rocky?" He's practically in tears, "T've wanted to be vice-president of the United States all my life. The only thing that has stopped me has been my personal fortune. Give me a break."

"Well," I say as I start stacking the stocks and bonds neatly on my desk, "Til take the money this one time. But don't let it happen again."

"Happy and I will be eternally grateful," he says.

I'm embarrassed. 'Please get off your knees, Rocky. I would have done it for anybody. Maybe you can do a favor for me

Pope Paul VI, the Cautious Reformer

By William Tuohy

ROME, Sept. 25.—The familiar figure moves more slowly these days through the papel apartments overlooking St.

Though rested after a summer in the Alban Hills outside Rome, Pope Paul VI has aged visibly and considerably. The Pope turns II tomorrow, his health beginning to fail, time and the burdens of the papacy taking their tolls. Rumors of his ill health persist:

arthritis, pernicious anemia, even leukemia. No one outside the Pontiff's closest circle knows the exact state of his health, but Vatican sources say that he at least has a painful form of arthritis, which on some days makes it almost impossible for him to kneel or sign his name.

There are few observers, however, who now believe that Pope Paul will retire unless completely physically or mentally in-capacitated—such is his concept of the papery. Yet most Vatican watchers think that Pope Paul is moving into the twilight years of his papacy, the dynamic years behind him. And they are beginning to add up the balance sheet, attempting the difficult assessment of the papacy of Giovanni Battista Montini, the 262d holder of the keys of St. Peter.

It was Pope Paul's fate to succeed Pope John XXIII, perhaps the most popular Pope in history, and to inherit a church not simply in transition but in turmoil that has affected many of the 683 million Roman Catholics around the world.

And it was Pope Paul's misfortune, all too often, to be compared personally to Pope John: the burly, personable, outgoing, expansive, relaxed John, of peasant stock, a person of the world who took it as it was and the slight, careful, indecisive, worry-prone Paul, from the Italian uppermiddle class, a product of the Vatican Curia who was wracked by "the growing spiritual anguish of modern man." For both their papacies, the second Vatican Ecumenical Council, from 1962-

'65, was perhaps the central motivating event. And if by calling the council, the first in almost a century, Pope John might have been said to have sown the winds of change, it was Pope Paul's responsibility to reap the whirlwind. And reap it he did, for better or worse; Pope Paul has presided over more changes in the church since the counter-reformation in the 16th century. "Paul with his caution would never have called the council," says one Vatican expert, but John might never have been able to finish it. Paul finished it: He had the thankless job of codifying John's inspira-

The reforms stemming from the Vatican Council and enacted by Pope Paul are many: He modernized the liturgy, allowing mass to be said in the vernacular; he dropped the index of forbidden books; he threw out much of the Vatican panoply and set a less pretentious style; he did away with the ban on eating meat on Friday; he gave women additional church roles; he liberalized the restrictions on priests leaving the clergy; he quickened the marriage annulment procedure.

He streamlined the Curis by inter-nationalizing it (from 10 Italian cardinals out of 13 to seven foreign cardinals out of 11) and set the terms of heads of congregations to five years. He asked bishops to retire from active service at 75 and ordered that cardinals not vote in the sacred college after 80. He called regular meetings of the church's bishops to Rome ventilate the stuffy ecclesiastical air of the Vatican. Now, he is considering vastly enlarging the conclave that votes on his as pope.

Pope Paul wrote progressive encyclicals on social and political reform—at least, by church standards. He advocated such reforms in depressed greas of Christendom as Latin America

To enhance the image of the church as a world moral force, he set off on an unecedented series of trips. The first pope to fly, he traveled to the United Nations to plead the cause of peace in Vietnam: he visited Jerusalem, Asia and Australia. Pope Paul, too, launched a series of ecumenical gestures toward other churches, not only the Eastern Orthodox rites. He visited the headquarters of the Protestant World Council of Churches in Geneva.

Then he led the church's opening toward Eastern Europe, attempting to re-establish diplomatic contact with Yugoslavia, Hungary, Czechoslovakia, Poland and Russia. At the same time, he tried to reach out for some kind of contact with the common man: saying masses in workers' parishes, donning a tunnel worker's hard-hat and an American Indian war bonnet.

But while Pope Paul showed broad liberal tendencies in social reform, when it came to matters of faith and doctrine, he remained steadfastly conservative and traditional. He took a staunch position against relaxing the rules on priestly celibacy—despite the protests of bishops in many parts of the world faced with a shortage of ordained cieries. He also vatoed the idea of ordaining women as fullfledged priests.

And in the single most controversial and unpopular act of his papacy; Pope Paul on July 29, 1968, issued the encyclical "Humanae Vitae," on human life, in which, contrary to many expectations, he came out firmly against any means of artificial birth control

The Pope's unyielding stand unleashed a frenzy of protest, from non-Catholics and Catholics alike. Thus Pope Paul, to whom papal authority is a supreme virtue, was faced with the fact that thousands of priests disagreed with his views and millions of Catholics defied or ignored his instructions on birth control.

In Italy, the Pope further angered liberal sentiment when he insisted in pu ing through a referendum to rescind the nation's civil divorce law last spring. And he and the dominant Christian Democratic party went down to a humiliating defeat. "It may seem injudicious or inept to take these pos sitions when he did," explains one senior Vatican official. "But the Pope is a traditionalist about such matters. He believes he is responsible before God. And he is not unwilling to take unpopular stands on such matters."

On the surface, Pope Paul has appeared cool and distant, favoring a rather olderfashioned ecclesiastical style of the dignified father figure. To the Italians, he seems something of a Hamlet, indecisive, whose speaking style seems to be stilted and grating, and he appears uncom-fortable in crowds.

Yet knowledgeable clerics say that while Pope Paul is simply not at his best in large gatherings, he is an emotional and sensitive man in private. And in personto-person encounters, he displays deep feelings about people, the Catholic Church and the world.

Reform without estrangement: that has been the continuing aim of a man who believes that anything more than gradual reform in the Catholic Church could provoke the kind of negative reaction that would defeat the positive goals.

The other day, a Vatican churchman, looking back on Paul's career, called him "a cautious reformer." While the description may be somewhat less than heroic, to Giovanni Battista Montini, a Pope torn all his life between his inbred doctrinal conservativism and social liberalism, "a cautious reformer" is probably no mean
